Khalid Bashir (Young India Fellowship, Class of 2020)

At Image Foundry, I have been working on an array of projects ranging from setting up the business analytics vertical for the company, collaborating with teams across the UK and India to design new strategies and their implementation. Throughout, management has been open to new ideas and their implementations. Company leadership has been supportive of new learnings, skill development and have been very empathetic and flexible in their approach. I got an opportunity to represent the company in the Greater Manchester AI Program in collaboration with Manchester Metropolitan University where I got to know about the foundational understanding of the use of AI in traditional businesses. In the second phase of this program, we would be exploring designing AI models for automation in the CGI industry. Opportunities like these have helped me tremendously in getting skilled and adding value to the work I do.

The atmosphere around is a happy and cheerful one and staff here won't lose a chance to celebrate - be it any team member's birthday, work anniversary, or a festival of any description. Overall, it has been an incredible experience working with a diverse set of people in a very artistic and dynamic environment.

Sam Dennis (Young India Fellowship, Class of 2021)

Image Foundry has provided me with the opportunity to take on the responsibility to strategize and construct project management workflows with the freedom to experiment.

Working with an international team across 3+ countries and a myriad of varied projects is an augmenting experience. Learning and implementing what I learned through experience is much encouraged. Image Foundry has cultivated in me the ability to tackle tasks creatively while following a structured approach. I have often been given the chance to break out of my comfort zone and work cross-functionally across various verticals.

With a team that is not strongly bound by hierarchies renders you confident to posit new ideas and creatively engage in them. We push our colleagues and teammates to express with liberty their artistic side in an unfettering environment. Working with a small, resilient and caring team lets me dabble with various streams of work even outside of my daily duties, which is quite a ventilating space and a qualitatively enriching experience. Through this, I have had the chance to develop my skills and knowledge in multiple domains and grow holistically.
