
THE WOMB

WELCOME TO THE WOMB!

Its where it all starts, a place of beautiful accidents.

We are a communications agency where great ideas are conceived to solve real business problems.

Started by ex-chiefs of Ogilvy India, Kawal Shoor and Navin Talreja, the founding philosophy of The Womb has been anchored in bringing back respect to advertising.

Check on your acquaintances in advertising, in any place in the world and you'd often hear them working on pitch to win client's business on one brand or another, churning out ideas in a matter of days. All just to prove to that they are worthy of the client's business – throwing away ideas for free, hoping something will stick – it's like selling your soul.

We believe that business problems that brands have been grappling with for months and years cannot be solved within just a matter of days and that's why don't believe the pitch process is the right way to go about doing business respectfully.

Our clients are our believers and unlike any other client-agency relationship, ours is that of equals.

Our work motivates us, ideas motivate us and our reputation motivates us.

We are committed to ideas that move people and bring about behaviour change in favour of brands. This is the driving force behind our body of work that pushes boundaries and limits of what creativity can achieve.

SOME OF OUR WORK

Rio Pads
Challenged the way sanitary pads have been sold in India. And did so not just to grow the brand but also bring about historic change in how periods came to be shown on national TV – showing blood as is, no blue inks.

Friends Adult Diaper
For India's largest adult diaper brand, we sought out to take away all the shame and embarrassment surrounding the condition of incontinence, to bring back independence and confidence among sufferers.

WHEN LOOKING TO RECRUIT FOR OUR PLANNING / STRATEGY TEAM FOR THE POSITION OF PLANNING SUPPORT

Our planners are passionate about understanding people, knowing consumers of brands well and unearthing real insight into what makes people tick. What moves and will move people to act in favour of brands.

But like all successful relationships, we align with the person first and skills second.
Specifically, the attitude we are looking for…

- Be in love with ideas, and want ideas to lead consumers (not just mirror present realities)

- Feel responsible to bring in new perspectives from culture, community, consumer and content

- Have a POV yet be non-judgemental (openness to accept differences that exist)

- Ability to generally see a glass half full

- Should want to invest time in studying how advertising works

ROLE DESCRIPTOR FOR PLANNING SUPPORT POSITION

- Be the real source of new knowledge across culture, community, consumer

- Be the repository of consumer knowledge in the category
    - Understand the journey across various stages of the consumer funnel – need-gaps, purchase, usage, experience, brand relationship, consumer perceptions around the category, competition
    - Market-level: retail (offline) and online (e-com) category dynamics, market performance

- Be able to do incisive research (primary and secondary) across traditional and emerging (digital) domains
    - Adept at using listening, data mining online tools, media ethnography, consumer connects
    - Day-in-a-life of, meeting people that matter

- Be comfortable with presenting research

- Knowledge → Thinking
    - Thought starters, silliest of idea that the rational mind may not approve of, random what-ifs

- Thinking → Strategy
    - Provide proof points for arguments, data, consumer anecdotes
    - Visualise and build strategy presentations

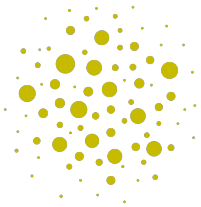

- Strategy → Briefing
    - Consumer and business update for creative thinking
    - Work on 'inspiration' stimulus for creative briefing process

- Creative idea → Consumer journey
    - Understand consumer journey, identify points of intervention that can help bring about desired behaviour change
