zomato

better food for more people

Business Data Analyst

Experience

2+ years

Who we are?

Zomato embodies a culture of ownership, creativity, resilience and growth. It is the net sum of its people - who want to create one of the best and most ambitious food companies in the world.

Imagine yourself being able to analyse customer response to Zomato products and drive meaningful changes to these products by your data insights. All of this while being surrounded with teams that support and inspire you to be the best version of yourself, every single day.

We are looking for someone who is:

- An ambitious professional with about 2 years of experience in analytics
- Relentless to derive insights through data exploration
- Proficient in Advanced Excel, SQL, and has exposure in Python/R
- Curious and has a penchant for thinking the impossible
- Experienced in Tableau (brownie points)

What will you do?

As a Business Data Analyst, you will apply your data expertise to measure and analyse performance across multiple lines of business at Zomato while working closely with leaders across these functions.

- Provide analysis of trends and forecasts to derive actionable insights
- Understand customer behaviour through metrics and identify targeted areas for business growth
- Work closely with our business and product teams to enable data-driven decision making
- Design market/ business intelligence reports, performance measurement dashboards and other data products to ensure data accuracy and consistent reporting

How to apply?

Join us, and together we can unlock the future of food – a future where everybody is eating better food, no matter where they are, and what they can afford.

If this message was forwarded to you by a Zoman, we have some good news. Talk to them and find out if you are the right fit. Once they say yes, all you have to do is share your CV and a 1-minute video with them and we'll get in touch with you.

Explore our blog for insightful articles, personal reflections, impactful resources, and ideas that inspire us at Zomato.

