EUROMONITOR INTERNATIONAL

What we offer

International:
Not only do we have a very multinational workforce in each office, but we are all dealing with our other offices worldwide on a daily basis. With 16 offices globally there are opportunities for international exposure and global team interaction.

Hardworking but sociable:
Our staff know how to work hard but also how to enjoy themselves! We pride ourselves on creating an appropriate work-life balance, with flexible hours, hybrid work from home and office, as well as 15 working days from anywhere in the world. We also focus on productivity by having rules such as free-meeting Fridays and shorter working hours during the summer on Fridays. We have regular social events including frequent after work meet ups, summer and Holiday parties and a whole range of sports and other groups to be involved with.

Committed to making a difference:
We think that people are looking for something worthwhile in a company beyond the workplace. Our extensive Corporate Social Responsibility Programme gives each member of staff two volunteering days a year in addition to holidays, allowing us to reach out into the local community with mentoring, group volunteering, and fundraising initiatives. We also support international charities through our website sales, match staff sponsorship fundraising, and carbon offsetting all our flights, amongst many other activities.

Opportunities to grow:
We offer extensive training and development opportunities at all levels. The vast majority of our managers and directors have been promoted from within and many have moved across departments as well as upwards. We pride ourselves on identifying and rewarding talent.

Equal Employment Opportunity Statement:
Euromonitor International does not discriminate in employment on the basis of race, colour, religion, sex, national origin, political affiliation, sexual orientation, gender identity, marital status, disability and genetic information, age, membership in an employee organization, or other non-merit factor.

Job Description - Research Associate
Catalyst Consulting Team

OVERVIEW

Catalyst is our largest analytical unit focused on the optimisation and modernisation of our methods and processes by leveraging technology, automation, and visualisation. The team is also responsible for developing and executing our custom productised solutions that allow us to answer our clients' critical business questions faster.

Our research is varied in terms of geographic footprint. Additionally, there also a great deal of variety in terms of sectors – while the Research Associate will often be working with the big global FMCG players such as those in Consumer Finance, Home & Garden and Packaging, other key clients come from areas such as government organizations and trade associations. As such, work can be business-to-business or consumer focused.

We are looking for motivated self-starters who are excited by working in a diverse, international environment and believe that we can create a new centre of excellence in Mexico. We are passionate about learning, solving problems and making a difference. If you are an analytical thinker, passionate about data and driven by problem-solving, this might be the right opportunity.

Who would thrive in this role?

- A curious mindset and a passion to learn, solve problems and make a difference.
- A highly flexible individual who is ready to embrace diversity and change.
- A credible enthusiast with a relentlessly positive attitude and effective leadership style.
- An analytical and strategic thinker.
- An excellent communicator with great listening skills who is open to new ideas.
- A true team player, collaborative and transparent who can work in a global environment.
