Monks of method's mission is to help professional men dress elegantly everyday with ease. With casualization of workplaces, men can't hide in stuffy, old suits any more, and need to depend on ready-to-wear chinos, jeans, polos, oxford shirts and so on. This poses a few problems:

1. Fit. Ready-to-wear clothes are made in standard sizes and force men to compromise on fit, which is the number one concern for anyone.
2. Quality. The fast fashion movement has forced manufacturers to churn out knockout designs quickly by cutting corners.
3. Ethics. Fashion industry leads in creating wastage, polluting the environment and exploiting low-wage workforce.

Our customers so far had to look abroad to get the quality they yearned for. We are bridging that gap at home with a new mass premium offering in Monks with no-compromise quality and care, once accessible only to luxury, married to a perfect, made-to-measure fit.
Monk's approach is minimal, timeless, direct and authentic. We are technical, detail oriented and authoritative. We are looking for a Brand
Story Architect, who will conceive and weave the Monks story through all media and platforms. The Story Architect will champion the Monks voice by cutting through the clutter in the market and inspire the population to join the Monks way. He/she will be the custodian of our brand.

Our Story Architect:
— is curious, and research driven. He/she enjoys learning and understanding our products in depth - their heritage, fabrics, construction methods and cultural nuances.
— loves reading and writing
— is a storehouse of ideas
— conceives brand campaigns
— creates social media and advertisement concepts and copy
— creates thoughtful, well-researched website and blogs content
— works with designers and other team members to give final shape to the creatives
— is self-driven, team worker and go-getter
— has a serious sense of humour

PREFERRED SKILLS:
- An excellent storyteller who can create interesting and engaging content for digital
- Must have handled social pages (Fb/Twitter etc.) personally for D2C/ Ecommerce brands
- Ability to write great engaging web copy in a real time environment that can stimulate user interaction, discussion and engagement