Sr. Associate/ Manager: Partnerships

Alohomora Education Foundation has started on an ambitious journey to mainstream the need and process of career exploration for young people. We are building the ecosystem for every child to pursue their career of choice. We are poised to grow exponentially in the next three years to enable 1 million young people to make informed career decisions.

As AEF's partnerships manager, you will own the 'what' and 'how' of our communication strategy towards our key stakeholders - young people, educators, policy makers, parent and donor community. You will pursue leads and build both financial and non-financial partnerships for us across the ecosystem. This role is critical to take our vision to lakhs of young people across India and garner support for our mission.

Note: Based on your skills and experience, this role may have different levels from Sr. Associate to Manager. We encourage you to apply if you're excited about our mission, even if your compensation expectations are different from what we have shared.

About us: Alohomora Education Foundation has made it its mission to enable young people from underserved communities to make interest and strength aligned career choices. With our flagship framework CareerShala, we work closely with UNICEF's Project Yuwaah, the Govt of Delhi and the District administration & Education department of Jhajjar- Haryana and Haridwar-Uttarakhand to support more than 3 Lakh students each year. In 2024, we are also launching our program with govt. of Madhya Pradesh, with pilot across the districts of Bhopal, Indore & Devas. We are looking to grow our impact rapidly over the next few years.

About the role: You would be taking Alohomora's story and mission to the world with an aim to popularise our CareerShala framework, maximise outreach, build networks, and raise funds. You will work directly with the founders to strategize and execute our advocacy and fundraising efforts.

This role is for you if you are a

- People's person - Loves fostering and maintaining relationships with others
- Master storyteller - Ability to craft compelling narratives to inspire and influence stakeholders. Excellent listening, written & verbal communication skills to create stakeholder-specific media
- Key strategist - Ability to strategize and plan our advocacy/campaign efforts, and identify the right funding partners and ensure strong synergies with them

Broad Areas of Responsibility:

1. Building Partnerships
    a. Identify and source partnership opportunities through research, connections & inbound lead follow-up for both funding and other forms of collaborations with government, other NGOs etc.

b. Research potential partners to design communication for them and pursue the partnership towards closure.
c. Work with team leads within AEF to create partnership objectives based on internal goals and partner expectations.
d. Create a systematic, process-driven approach to nurture partnerships including creating avenues for them to experience AEF's work, having regular check-ins and creating reports.

2. Amplifying our story
   a. Create campaigns for different stakeholders with the intention of spreading AEF's stories as inspiration. Identify appropriate platforms for these stories to be shared – social media, print media, radio, speaking events, etc
   b. Consolidate our impact stories and find avenues for sharing our work including long form articles, editorials, academic essays etc
   c. Strategise & organise events such as promotional launches, think spaces with partners, workshops, outreach events, etc

The opportunity - What's in it for you?

- Be part of a young, dynamic team's audacious vision to empower India's youth
- Bring your ideas into action in a work environment that values purpose and invests in your personal and professional growth
- Work directly with founders and be a part of strategy conversations while engaging with key advisors and mentors in Alohomora's extended network.

Preferred education and experience

- Graduate/post graduate in any stream, preferably related to social sciences, humanities, education, development communication, mass communication, marketing. We encourage applicants with teaching/education fellowships to apply
- Demonstrated excellence in fundraising, report/proposal writing, partnership building and/or relationship management through full time work or through leadership experiences in college.
- Understanding of the development sector and its ecosystem of stakeholders.

Mindsets and skills

- Willing to commit at least 2 years to build our partnerships function.
- Ability to organise, prioritise, track, and manage a variety of tasks to deliver results. Good at multitasking and simultaneously managing multiple projects
- Disposition to maintain positive energy and perseverance in face of delay, rejections and rigorous follow ups
- Excellent written and verbal communication skills and ability to contextualise content, mode and style of communication according to the target audience
- Basic understanding of social media & user groups, data analysis, including social media analytics to monitor and evaluate engagement across social media channels

- Proficiency in the MS Office toolkit such as Excel, PowerPoint and Word and design apps such as Canva
