Start Date: Immediate

A strategic and independent initiative by Bharat Navodaya Abhiyan (BNA) in collaboration with the Government of India's Ministry of Education, the Navodaya Law Scholars Program (NLSP) is dedicated to nurturing social justice leaders from the grassroots.

Under the New Education Policy of 1985, a network of residential co-educational model schools known as Jawahar Navodaya Vidyalayas was established in each district of India to identify and educate gifted rural students. BNA serves as the public service arm of the Navodaya schools' alumni network, representing over 13 lakhs+ members nationwide.

BNA's mission is to identify and foster talent from vulnerable rural communities, providing them access to top leadership positions in government, business, civil society, international institutions, and other relevant spheres. We believe all segments of society must be represented in decision-making processes to create an inclusive India.

NLSP recruits high school students from select states and offers them an 18-month residency program alongside their final years of schooling. This residency includes modules on life skills, leadership, preparation for law college, and coaching for CLAT and 11th-12th class curriculum. Subsequently, students receive guidance on college admissions, scholarships, on-campus support, internships, careers, and lifelong need-based assistance.

While BNA has historically operated with a volunteer-driven structure at central, state, and district levels, full-time programs like NLSP require dedicated program teams. As a starting point, BNA's Founder’s Office is seeking to hire an experienced multitasking individual to establish systems and processes, oversee additional hiring, and work on strategic initiatives as a core implementation partner to the board members and president of BNA.

The potential for growth and development is vast for candidates capable of spearheading initiatives and thriving with passion and limited guidance. After our on-going campus at Noida, we are launching a new campus at Hyderabad, to expand our reach and numbers, and this position provides an opportunity to learn and grow at a fast pace directly working with the Founder and core stakeholders.
